How Funds are being used

Funds were awarded to Rwanda and Zambia in 2024.

Rwanda will use funds to develop a holistic model for the integration of mental health and NCD services into multisectoral settings, focusing on workplaces, schools, and refugee settings.

Zambia's will use funds to reduce risk factor exposure among their youth by strengthening legislative and policy frameworks, and by developing models for the prevention and early detection of mental health conditions in the young.

Funds are catalytic. Both countries are committed to support ongoing activities at the end of the funding period – a requirement of Health4Life Fund grants.

Funds are also being used to establish a new South-South and Triangular Cooperation Lab, under the leadership of the UNDP. The Lab will serve as a platform for accelerating inclusive and sustainable innovations in the prevention and control of NCDs by facilitating peer-to-peer learning, knowledge exchange, and technical support across countries.

With a focus on H4LF grant recipients while also engaging countries beyond the Fund's financial reach, the Lab will complement country grantmaking to support scaling proven interventions, promoting policy coherence, and supporting national capacity-building through cost-effective and contextually grounded approaches.

How Funds are being used

Key area	Rwanda	Zambia
Focus	Integrating NCD and mental health services into multisectoral care systems.	Prevention and control of NCDs, promoting mental health among adolescents and youth.
Strategic alignment	2024–2029 Health Sector Strategic Plan (HSSP-V).	Multisectoral action, focusing on youth health.
Core components	1. Multisectoral system-building (joint NCD and Mental Health Technical Working Group, frameworks, workforce strengthening). 2. Pilot implementation (schools, workplaces, health centers, refugee communities). 3. Coordination (data systems, evidence use, and accountability).	1. Policy reform (health taxes, legislative changes to reduce alcohol/tobacco/sodium/sugar, school health policies). 2. Youth-friendly service delivery (psychosocial programs, digital platforms, peer counseling, behavior change campaigns).
Target populations	Genocide survivors, victims of gender-based violence, refugees, vulnerable adolescents, general population.	Vulnerable youth populations: adolescents with disabilities, out-of-school youth, orphans, pregnant teens, survivors of violence, youth in humanitarian contexts.
Delivery settings	Schools, workplaces, health facilities, community-based primary health structures, refugee-hosting settings.	Schools, youth resource centers, primary healthcare settings, community-based settings.
Innovations	Digital health tools for screening, referral, and education; tailored service packages and digital platforms for integrated care.	Digital platforms for mental health support, peer counseling, behavioral insight-driven campaigns for healthy lifestyles.
Geographic focus	Pilot implementation in three districts: Gasabo (urban), Huye (rural), Kirehe (refugee-hosting).	National scale, with a focus on youth resource centers and schools.
Coordination mechanisms	Joint NCD and mental health technical working group, multisectoral collaboration, investment case, costed national action plans, whole-of-society partnership.	National coordinating mechanism for NCDs, multisectoral collaboration across health, education, finance, agriculture, commerce, and policy advocacy for health taxes and health promotion fund.
Outcomes	Long-term improvements in access to NCD and mental health services, building a resilient and integrated health system.	Holistic and sustainable improvements in adolescent and youth health, with an integrated multisectoral approach to mental health and NCD prevention.

Through the Health4Life Fund, Rwanda intends to use schools as the best way (to reach) children even (for) mental health programs.

Uniting partners across government and society because multisectoral action is required to tackle NCDs and promote mental health

We are a big believer in multi-partner trust funds. I'm very happy that the Health4Life Fund gives so much attention to mental health.

Ambassador Bekker, Netherlands
Health4Life Fund partners meeting, 77th World Health Assembly

We are proud to support the US Fund for UNICEF in its innovative initiatives tackling NCDs in resources-limited communities in low-and middle-income countries.

Cynthia Cardona, President of the Eli Lilly and Company Foundation

The Health4Life Fund was established in 2021 by UNDP, UNICEF and WHO (three members of the United Nations NCD Task Force) following the third high-level meeting on NCDs. It is administered by the UN Multi-Partner Trust Fund Office. The Fund catalyzes domestic financing and action to prevent and control NCDs and to improve mental health. It also enables governments, the United Nations development system and other development partners to work together towards country-level priorities in line with evidence-based norms and standards. The Fund is based on established financing-for-development, as well as aid and development effectiveness principles.
